RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

During my Ph.D. from the School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, the topic of my Doctoral research work was “India’s Peace Building Role in Afghanistan, Nepal and Sri Lanka: A Comparative Study.” It seeks to analyse India's peace-building role in post-9/11 Afghanistan, post-Comprehensive Peace Agreement (2006) Nepal, and post-Liberation tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) Sri Lanka from a regional power perspective. My study focuses on a less studied aspect of India's diplomacy and regional engagement viz., peace-building role in strife-torn societies.

During M.Phil. I worked on the topic India’s Role in Reconstruction of the Post-Taliban Afghanistan which covers the broader issues of conflict, terrorism, regional dynamics of the Afghan crisis, involvement of the international community in rebuilding process, and concerns of governance, democratization, and human security in Afghanistan.
